Description

This conference returns for its third year, providing educational value to industry members while providing a forum for networking and business development. Once again, the conference will address the specifics of renewable energy project development in the Northwest – both electricity and bioenergy – covering a range of issues relevant to the current business climate. This “nuts-and-bolts” approach distinguishes The Business of Renewable Energy from other energy conferences.

Audience

The conference is designed as a regional event that builds connections between project developers, service providers, technology providers, government agencies, financiers, and NGOs. The 2008 event included 300 participants, primarily from Oregon and Washington.

This year’s agenda is being expanded to three breakout tracks covering current issues in electricity and bioenergy production. Topics to be covered include:

- ◆ Economic outlook for renewable energy
